Learning astrology is an adventure, full of self-discovery and rewarding insight every step of the way.

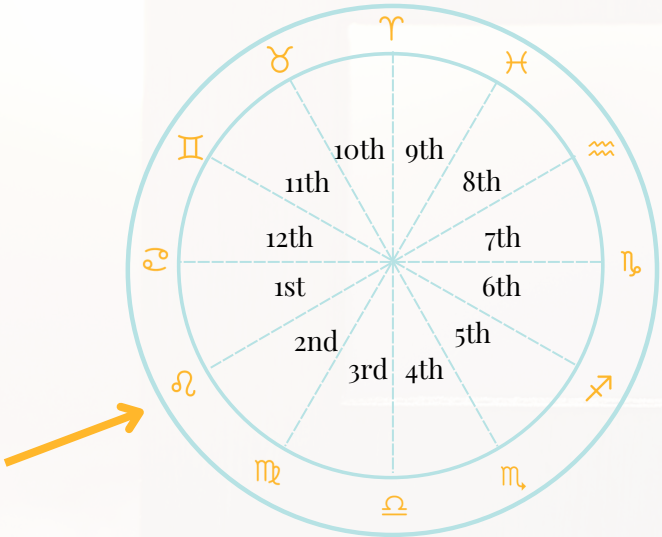

Nobody gets it all overnight, so Astrology Hub is here to help you cut through the noise and find just the information you need to move forward along your path, one step at a time.

If you've been listening to the House Series on the Astrology Hub Podcast, you've probably heard an astrologer say "locate the ruler of the ___ house" at least once! And maybe you've wondered, how the heck do I do that?!

Well, here's how:

1 Find the house cusp. What sign is on it?

The "cusp" of a house is the line that begins it, separating it from the house before it. In this example, the 2nd house cusp is in Leo.

2 What is the ruling planet of that sign?

Use the handy table below to find out!

ARIES	MARS
TAURUS	VENUS
GEMINI	MERCURY
CANCER	MOON
LEO	SUN
VIRGO	MERCURY
LIBRA	VENUS
SCORPIO	MARS/PLUTO*
SAGITTARIUS	JUPITER
CAPRICORN	SATURN
AQUARIUS	SATURN/URANUS*
PISCES	JUPITER/NEPTUNE*

If you're wondering why some signs have two planetary rulers, it's because the planets Uranus, Neptune and Pluto hadn't been discovered yet when the original rulership system was created. Some astrologers use only the traditional rulers, while some use both. Feel free to play around with traditional vs modern rulers and see which ones work better for you!*

House Keywords

Note: this list is just the beginning! Listen to the House Series Podcast for more!

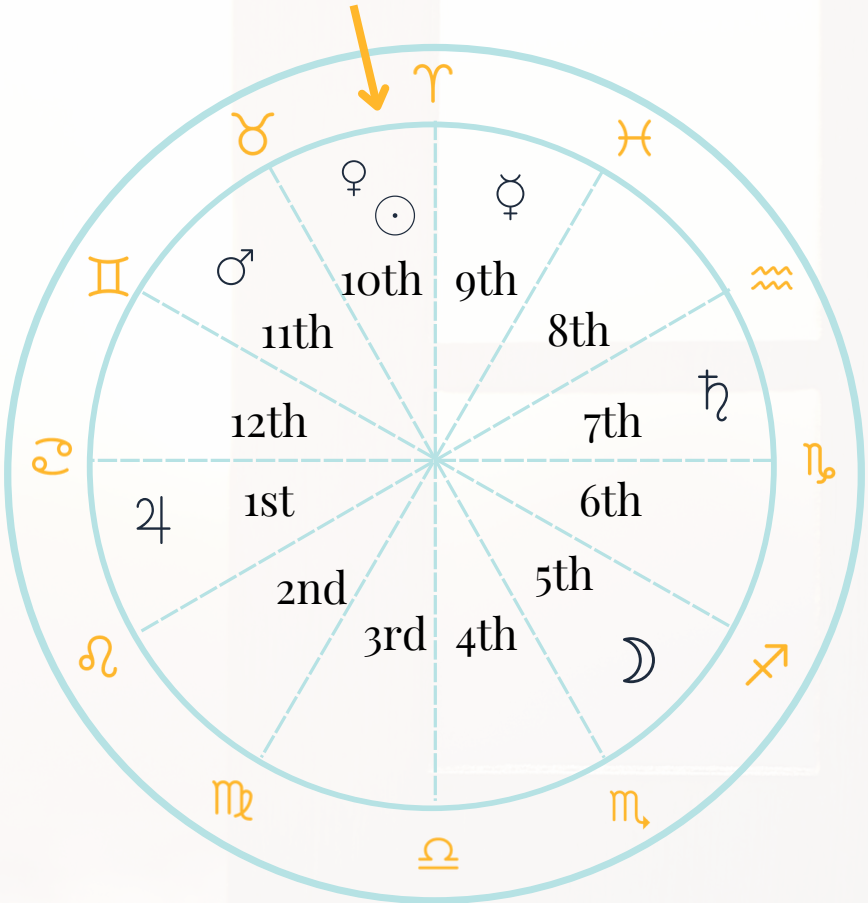

1st House: body & appearance
2nd House: money & values
3rd House: neighborhood & peers
4th House: home & family
5th House: joy & creativity
6th House: health & work
7th House: partnerships & clients
8th House: intimacy & growth
9th House: education & travel
10th House: career & social role
11th House: community & vision
12th House: spirituality & secrets

3 Where is that planet located in the chart?

Let's go back to our example chart -- now, with planets!

If the 2nd house cusp is in Leo, and Leo is ruled by the Sun, that means that the 2nd house is also ruled by the Sun!

In this example, the Sun is in Aries. That means, even though the 2nd House cusp is in Leo, Aries energy will be a secondary influence on this house. It also means that when planets in the moving sky transit the Sun, those transits will influence the 2nd house (so, among other things, this imaginary person's bank account) as well.

THANKS FOR READING!

In astrology, everything is connected. Every chart has layers of meaning that can be peeled back over time, and house rulership is one of them!

Now, try this with your own chart! What planet rules your 2nd house? Where is that planet? What does that tell you about your relationship with money and what you value? Don't push too hard to make the pieces fit if it doesn't feel right. You know yourself best – what feels true to you about your 2nd house ruler?

If you're still not sure, that's ok! Give the information time to settle. Journaling or talking through it with a friend can help, but the truth is that certain things will reveal themselves when the time is right. You can always come back to this guide when you're ready for more practice!
